About the author

The Unfinished is a British composer, sound designer and producer. His synth sounds have been featured in Hollywood films (Wonder Woman, Guardians of the Galaxy 2, Mad Max: Fury Road), hit TV series (Mr Robot, Manhunt: Unabomber, American Horror Story) and AAA game scores (Call of Duty, Apex Legends, Detroit: Become Human). He has worked with composers Jack Wall, Tom Salta, Paul Haslinger and Stephen Barton.

About the soundset

Renaissance is a fond tribute to an era of dance music that was a formative part of The Unfinished's musical heritage. Normally focused on synth programming for cinematic music, The Unfinished was inspired to create Renaissance after listening to the quintessential soundtracks for Psygnosis' futuristic racing game series, Wipeout. These games were full of classic electronic tracks by the likes of Orbital, The Chemical Brothers, Leftfield, Sasha, The Prodigy, Fluke, Photek and Future Sound of London.

Renaissance is unashamedly nostalgic for that late 90s / early millennial vibe, and to add further colour even dips its toes into Berlin School and Synthwave. Taking advantage of Repro-1's stellar analogue modelling, flexible sequencing and lush effects, Renaissance focuses on punchy low end, crunchy leads, driven riffs and basslines.
